

Support Services

The two: classifications of support services are SLA (Supportive Living Arrangement), and ISLA (Intensive Supportive Living Arrangement).

SLA – Supported Living Arrangement

These are services for individuals independent enough to live on their own who only require minimal assistance. We usually assist individuals in this category with programs directed toward money management, basic health needs, etc.

ISLA – Intensive Supported Living Arrangement

These services are appropriate for individuals who may need daily, 24 hour supervision. These individuals may need substantial support in all or some of the following life areas: Health and Wellness, Medication Management, Diet, Behavioral Intervention, Communication, Personal Care, Home Management, Transportation, Money Management, and/or Recreation. Other specific supports can be tailored to meet individuals' needs.
